To
The Right Honorable the Lord
Burleigh

My Lord

Did not that particular Dependance, I have long had the Honour and Happinesse to have on Your Lordships Family engage ye first Opertunity I could meet with of makeing a Publick Acknowledgement; yet nothing could be more reasonable, than to Secure these Musical Performances under the auspicious Patronage of So Noble a Descendant of that illustrious House from wch we have received ye Celebrated Patroness of our Science St. Cæcilia who we are assured, was of that Noble Family of the Roman Cæcilij, from whence our best Historians with so much Justice derive those Heroic Patriots, Your Lordship's Progenitors; to whom ENGLAND ow'd its Happiness, in its most flourishing State, under the fortunate Reign of Queen ELIZABETH A Princess, who in nothing Shew'd her Self a greater Mistress of Politie's, and a truer Mother of her People than in choosing Your Lordship's great Ancestors for her Chief Ministers whose Abilitijs, & Uncorrupted Honour So admirably united Patriot, and Statesman. I know my Lord, this Place offers me an Occasion of repeating all those Accomplishments of a Man of Quality, wch are so eminently Conspicuous in Your Lordship; But as That is a Theme infinitely above my Capacity, So I am Sensible, that there are none of those many Virtues, of wch

Your Lordship is master So prevalent as Your Humilitij, w.ch aw's my desire, and makes me do a Violence to my Inclinations rather then gratifie my Selfe with a Repetition of them, at the Expence of your Favour.

Your Lordships Love of this Science & your native Generosity Supersede, all that would be necessary to be Offered to a less accomplished Judge, to recommende Essaij's of this Nature to Your Protection: for they perhaps might not reflect that Greece (the Nurse if not Mother of all the Politer Studyes) made Music one of her Chief Darling's; and that Epaminondas amidst those Publick Virtues, both the ancient and modern World have ever admired in, him valu'd himselfe not a litlle on his Skill in this agreeable Art but your Lordship is too great a Judge, as well as too great a Lover of Harmony to need any foreign Argum.ts to advance its Value. And I have my Selfe receiv'd too many Favours from your Lordship, to doubt of your Pardon When I presume, w.th my Book; to dedicate my Self to your Lordship, who am,

My Lord

My humble Love has learnt to live
On what the nicest maid;
Without conscious blush can give
Beneath the Mirtle shade:
Of costly food it has no need
And nothing will devour,
But like the harmless Bee can feed,
And not impair the flow'r.

A spotless Innocence like thine
May such a flame allow;
Yet thy fair Name for ever shine
As does thy Beauty now;
I heard thee wish my Lambs might stray
Safe from the Fox's pow'r,
Thô ev'ry one becomes his prey
I'm richer then before.
